An Open and Affirming Congregation

The "Dividends" of Salem UCC

Dividends are a return on an investment. They are a stockholder's share in the gains of a company.

A church, of course, is not a business interest, and it does not function to turn a profit. Its gains are spiritual rather than financial. Still, it is more than appropriate to ask, "What gain have we earned from our toil as a church?" What return has there been on the investment of our stewardship?

This question comes to mind because a set of visitors will be trained soon, and commissioned during worship, to meet with our members and friends to ask for financial pledges toward the life, mission, and ministry of our congregation. "What dividends" can stewards expect from their investments?

The chief dividend comes in knowing we are using our money in obedience to God in causes that are righteous and a blessing to others. We are not doing for anyone all we might wish to do, but we trust our efforts are not in vain.

We teach children. One of the profound dividends of the church – one of the great investments of our stewardship – is the teaching of children. Through Sunday School lessons, Sunday School music, Vacation Bible School, and other means of sharing the truth of God with children and introducing them to the stories of Jesus, we are carrying the gospel to a new generation. If we start to worry that our children seem only to grow up and out of the church, we can put our hope in the powerful lines of a prophet of old who learned from God that the seeds we plant in terms of the word of God do not return empty but accomplish all that God purposes (Isaiah 55:10-11). What better investment than to put the truth of God into young hearts before they face the world?

We strengthen souls. A chief opportunity of the church lies in becoming a community of support for someone in need. It is impossible to tell fully what is transpiring in the heart of someone sitting in the sanctuary or in the soul of someone milling about during fellowship hour. The needs are as many as the people gathered. Would that we could do more for everyone, but we offer ourselves as a community of comfort, encouragement, acceptance, forgiveness, and discovery. Here, through us, persons can meet with God and, as it were, touch the hem of Christ's garment and receive some blessing from heaven. It may not cure their disease, end their grief, or solve their problems, but it gives them the confidence that comes from knowing they are not alone or unloved. Surely the strengthening of lives is a tremendous dividend on our stewardship.

We shape minds. Another significant work of the church is helping people think. We do not tell people what to think, but by way of scripture study, Sunday School classrooms, pulpit work, and book and other discussions we fund peoples' imaginations so they can think like Christians when they make their decisions about what to do with life, how to vote, how to respond to the issues of the day, and what to believe about God. What better way to shape society than to shape people and send them out into the world, as Jesus did, as salt and light (Matthew 5:13-16)? The world does not need fewer Christians; it can never have enough who know how to think.

We worship God. Someone has said that the highest act of the soul is to worship God. Through the music of the sanctuary, public prayer, the preaching of the divine word, welcome at the door, and friendliness in the pew, we help people realize this purpose for which they were made. We help usher them into the presence of God where they can begin to know God's power, majesty, and love. Once people are in the presence of God they soon forget us, for they become lost in wonder, love, and praise. Still, they remain grateful that the church helped bring them face to face with life's singular and great foundation. That gratitude, and the joy it brings us, is our dividend.

We appeal to a wider audience. If you measured it only by way of Sunday School and worship attendance, you might not think the reach of our church extends very far. Actually, our reach is extensive. Through the recording of our services, published articles, marketing pieces, social media posts, website, volunteer services, mission efforts, and building use our reach extends, without exaggeration, to thousands and it goes worldwide. Not everyone we reach is touched, of course, but many are. None could be if we did not extend a hand. Your financial gifts to the church make all this possible, and this reach is included in the dividends that are yours.

Our leaders have planned, and our congregation has approved by vote, a budget to meet the need and make possible the work we envision that will garner these dividends I have mentioned. Candidly, that budget is not a small one. Just as candidly: It costs more to be part of a living church than a dead one.

Volunteers will be contacting you asking for your financial support for Salem United Church of Christ. We do not tell anyone what to give. We do not ask anyone to give beyond their means. We do not ask anyone to give more than the Lord wishes them to give. And we do not ask anyone to give less.

Please graciously receive your visitor, and please generously pledge, joining with others to help Salem reach the dividends that accrue when a congregation's people take pride in and gladly support their church's work.

Building Loan

The GLAD PRAISES! Stewardship Campaign is asking for two pledges. A word about both is in order.

The first concerns our 2019 operating budget for the church. This is a one year pledge to be completed within the year to cover the costs of our operation as a church.

The second pledge is one made over a three year period and it is a pledge to financially help the church eliminate - or significantly reduce - its building loan.

Materials you receive concerning the three-year building loan portion of the campaign will include a suggested giving level. Almost without doubt this number will be higher – even much higher – than you initially imagine yourself capable of reaching.

Please take a light-hearted approach to this number. At the same time, take it seriously enough to consider it as a possibility. Have fun with it, remembering both what it is and what it is not.

There are several things it is not. It is not a demand. It is not an expectation. It is not assessment.

It is a way of stimulating your thinking. It is an invitation to toss this number around with God in prayer and consider if, perhaps, it just might be a possibility for you.

Only you can decide what is right for you. Only you can determine the giving level that best matches your circumstances. All we are asking is that you toy with this number in a spirit of prayer. Instead of immediately assuming it is beyond reach, please give it a second thought.

The more we can reduce our outstanding loan, the greater amount is available to us in our operating expense budget for program and other uses.

Salem incurred its building loan after our 2014 Annual Meeting at which we decided to refinance our building loan to take advantage of a lower interest rate and borrow some additional money to tend to other building-related needs not addressed during our 2011 remodel.

Service of Ordination for Laura Kolden

Recycle the Warmth Blanket Drive

One of the most basic and persistent needs encountered is households needing decent bedding. Not much is more important to health and success in school or at work than a good night's sleep.

The Society of St Vincent de Paul is conducting its 27th annual Recycle the Warmth blanket drive and Salem is set to take part once again. Please donate new or your gently used blankets, sheets and bedding to help our neighbors in need.

St Vincent de Paul provides hundreds of needy people in Madison and its surrounding communities with good quality recycled and new bedding throughout the year. A donation of $13 will allow a new blanket to be purchased. A collection bin is located in the fellowship hall. The drive concludes on Sunday Feb 17th. Thanks for your continued generous support of our neighbors in need throughout Dane County.

Birthday Calendar

We list the birthdays of those who have informed us of their birthday. If your birthday or the birthday of someone you know is not in the newsletter and you would like it to be, please contact the church office. If you are a newer member and would like to have your birthday included, please also let the church office know.

Cara's Vacation

Our office administrator, Cara, will be on vacation the week of February 25-March 1. Please contact Mark for any office needs.

Growing Through Giving

*Do all the good you can, by all the means you can,
in all the ways you can, in all the places you can,
at all the times you can, to all the people you can,
as long as you can.*

John Wesley

The sense of doing....and giving....and honoring God....and leaving the church and the world and our homes and our neighborhoods and our loved ones better off than they were when we found them....That longing to connect with what is holy and to make a difference in the ordinary everyday things of the world....is central to who we are as a people of faith. And it always has been.

We have been gifted by this space that was set aside for worship and for learning and for service by those who walked before us in this place. They gave and gave and gave to create a space not just for themselves but for us as well. And we have each been blessed by this space through its programs and ministry and we want to continue Growing Through Giving.

We have learned things about ourselves and about God here. We have wrestled with the Bible as it calls us to engage in the world in ways that might make us uncomfortable. We have learned what it means to live in community – not always agreeing but striving to love each other anyway. We have learned what it means to serve God – and to let go of our deeply held desire to be self-serving. In this sanctuary we have poured out our deepest prayers, trusting that God listens and responds in ways that may be beyond our understanding. And all of that is an ongoing part of our stewardship journey that is different for every person and family. Proportional giving helps us understand where we are on that faith journey.

And now we must continue to gift a generation we cannot yet see and do not yet know with a space that will invite and nurture a faith that stands for justice, and a community that stands for extravagant welcome for each and every person through its programs and ministry – a space that is set aside from the rest of the world. Remember, we are a great historic church whose greatest days are today and tomorrow.

Only with everyone's help will we be able to reach our goals in our GLAD PRAISES! Campaign. Our 2019 Stewardship Aspirational Goal is $435,000, our Basic Goal is $383,000, and our Reduced Goal is $275,000; and a goal of $550,000 to significantly reduce or eliminate our Building Loan.

Thank you for all of your support on behalf of Salem United Church of Christ!

My Bad

Have you ever thought about how many ways we have to say, "I made a mistake"? My bad. I messed up. I was wrong. I fell short. I goofed. Oops. It was my fault. In Latin they used to say, "Mea culpa." I never studied Latin, but I grew up Catholic, and that was part of one of the prayers of confession. Mea culpa, mea culpa, mea maxima culpa. My fault, my fault, my most grievous fault. OK, we don't usually say it so dramatically in our church, but we share with all Christian churches the idea that humans are not perfect. We mess up. We sin.

Sins can be small or big. There is a difference between a small sin like littering and a big sin like armed robbery. But it's only a difference of size, not a difference of substance. All sins hurt. They hurt others in some way, like how littering prevents someone we may never meet from enjoying the natural beauty of someplace in creation. They hurt us, even as we're in the middle of doing them, because they distract us from God's love. God created us to be holy, as God is holy, so that we can share eternity together.

And yet: here we are, messed-up people in a messed-up world. David knew this better than anyone. He was, and is, considered to be among the greatest kings in history. He was brave, devoted, thoughtful, and creative. He played the harp and wrote many of the Psalms. His writings, like the third verse in Psalm 51, reveal that this highly respected leader struggled with guilt over mistakes from his past. For I know my transgressions, and my sin is ever before me.

David's mistakes were real. And they were BIG. You can read about them in the First and Second Books of Samuel, in the Old Testament.

Our mistakes are real, too. They are "ever before us." Sometimes they can make us feel unworthy of love. Guilt and shame are hard feelings, and we can put a lot of effort into making them go away. We might try to deny them, minimize them, or blame them on someone else. One thing that's very, very easy to do is to compare ourselves with others. Yeah, I dropped that piece of litter on the street. At least I didn't rob a bank. No doubt David tried to escape his guilt that way at some point. But eventually he found his way around to asking God for help. Later in Psalm 51, in verse 10, he prays: Create in me a clean heart, O God, and put a new and right spirit within me. God seems to love that kind of honesty. 1 Samuel 13:14 says that David was a man "after God's own heart."

When we mess up--and we will mess up--it's good to remember that God isn't lurking around the corner, waiting to jump all over us for the things we do wrong. God knows everything about us, including our weaknesses. In our worst moments, God is nearest to us: waiting to lift us up and make us new again. We believe in a God of first, second, third, and millionth chances, because God is willing and able to take our messes and make them into something completely new.

May you know the Lord's powerful, radical, and unconditional grace,

Cathy Kwilinski

~on behalf of the Youth Ministry Team~

Joys & Concerns

We thank God with joy for:

- a beautiful Winter Walk in January, and missing the rain by minutes!
- the Epiphany: even when Jesus was just a baby, all nations and faiths were welcome in his home
- our own Salem member Bob Zurbuchen, who recently received a Quilt of Valor for his military service

We pray in faith and hope for:

- our friends who are struggling with loneliness or social anxiety
- federal employees and contractors, dealing with uncertainty because of the government shutdown
- the people of Yemen, enduring unimaginable suffering from war and famine

Remember to let us know of your joys and concerns, either anonymously or by name. They don't necessarily have to be directly related to you or your family, but they can be! What are you joyful or concerned about in your community or in the wider world?

Social Justice Corner

O God, to those who have hunger give bread, and to those who have bread, give the hunger for justice.

-Latin American prayer

The poor and hungry are everywhere. They are near us in our community, and they are in the most far-away nations. The Middle Eastern nation of Yemen, hanging off the southern edge of the Arabian Peninsula, is absolutely full of them. Twelve million people, two-thirds of Yemen's population, are facing starvation. 85,000 children under the age of five have already died from starvation and disease. Aid organizations like the International Rescue Committee are finding it extremely difficult to get food and medicine to the people, because they are caught in the middle of a ferocious civil war. You can visit www.rescue.org to learn more about the war and what people are doing to help.

How did the situation get so bad? Yemen was already one of the poorest nations in the world when their civil war started in 2015. It's complicated. This is a conflict known as a proxy war, meaning that two other countries and their allies are fighting each other using people who live in Yemen almost like game pieces. Houthi rebels are "proxies" in Yemen who get weapons from Iran. Yemeni government soldiers are "proxies" who get their weapons from Saudi Arabia and its allies. Basically, Iran and Saudi Arabia are using the two sides in Yemen to fight each other from long distance. In the process, they have destroyed the country's ability to feed its own people.

It gets more complicated. The United States is involved in this conflict, because we provide different kinds of help to Saudi Arabia to carry on their war. We sell them weapons, we help them find targets, and we refuel the airplanes they are using to drop bombs, often on civilian populations.

So, half a world away from us, millions of innocent people are suffering because of a war that the United States is helping to pay for.

What can we do?

1. Learn more. Google "Yemen" and read articles from non-political groups, especially those providing aid in the country. These include organizations like the Red Cross, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, and Doctors Without Borders.
2. Tell our elected officials that we care about this problem, and we want the United States to stop making it worse. Our U.S. Senators and Representatives have the right to decide whether to keep supporting Saudi Arabia in this conflict. Find the official websites for Senators Tammy Baldwin and Ron Johnson, as well as Representative Mark Pocan. You can send a message to them directly from their website. It's important to let them know that you care about this issue, and that you want the United States to protect families and children from the horrors of war.

LET MUSIC FILL YOUR HEART AND PASTA FILL YOUR BELLY!

Salem Youth invite you to feast on a delicious Spaghetti Dinner in Fellowship Hall immediately following worship on Music Sunday.
